Introduction of Romania and Bucharest

Romania is a country located in south-eastern Europe, on the lower stream of the Danube River, north of the Balcanic Peninsula and west of the Black Sea. Its neighboring countries are Bulgaria to the south, Serbia and Hungary to the west, Ukraine to the north and Moldova to the north-east. Located at a crossroads between western Europe and Asia, Romania has always been a key strategic point in the history of the “The Old Continent”. With a total surface of 238.391 square km, one can find here some of the most unique places in the world, such as the Danube Delta, the Carpathian Garden, or the Danube Gorge.

While visiting Romania, a city that you should definitely not miss is the capital city, Bucharest. Undoubtedly it is the biggest and most influential city of the country, being the country’s political, economical and commercial center, with a population of approximately 3.4 million people. There is quite a wide variety of things you can do here. For example, you can visit the local museums, if you want to take a short glimpse of the Romanian cultural values. The city also has some unique architectural wonders such as The Arch of Triumph, the Athenaeum or The Palace of Parliament, also known as The People’s Palace, the second largest building in the world after the Pentagon, The Royal Palace that shelters the National Gallery, The Cotroceni Museum, were is also the Presidential Office, The Free Press Palace, iconic copy of the Lomonosov State University in Moscow, all of which you can visit either by foot or by tourist bus.
